

HANS ERIK STOLTEN (ED.)

History Making and Present Day Politics

The meaning of collective memory in South Africa

376 pp, 978-91-7106-581-0
SEK 320, US$ 39.95

Although popular use of history helped remove apartheid, the study of history lost status during the transition process. Some of the reasons for this, like the nature of the negotiated revolution, social demobilisation, and individualisation, are analysed in this book. The combination of scholarly work with an active role in changing society has been a central concern in South African history writing. This book warns against the danger of history being caught between reconciliation, commercialisation, and political correctness.

Some of the articles critically examine the role of historians in ideological debates on gender, African agency, Afrikaner anti-communism, early South African socialism, and the role of the business world during late apartheid. Other contributions explore continuing controversies on the politics of public history in post-apartheid South Africa, describe the implementation of new policies for history education, or investigate the use of applied history in the land restitution process and in the TRC. The authors also examine a range of new government and private initiatives in the practical use of history, including the establishment of new historical entertainment parks and the conversion of museums and heritage sites. For readers interested in nation building processes and identity politics, this book provides valuable insight.

In this collection, some of South Africa's most distinguished historians and social scientists present their views on the importance of history and heritage for the transformation of the South African society. Contributions are made by Gary Baines, Anna Bohlin, Colin Bundy, Catherine Burns, Allison Drew, Saul Dubow, Albert Grundlingh, Martin Legassick, Merle Lipton, Bernhard Makhosezwe Magubane, Martin J. Murray, Thiven Reddy, Christopher Saunders, Hans Erik Stolten, Elaine Unterhalter, Georgi Verbeeck and Wessel Visser.

Hans Erik Stolten is a historian working at the Centre of African Studies at the University of Copenhagen. He worked as Research Fellow at the Nordic Africa Institute from 1999 until 2002.

ORDERFORM

I hereby order _____ copy/copies of History Making and Present Day Politics. Price 320 SEK (USD 39.95) + a shipping fee.
Surface mail: European Union, Norway and Switzerland SEK 35.00 for 1st copy; SEK 15.00 for each additional. Airmail other areas SEK 80.00 for 1st copy; SEK 30.00 for each additional.

Name/Attn. _____

Company/Institution _____

Address _____

City _____ Postal code _____ Country _____

E-mail _____

METHOD OF PAYMENT

Please send me an invoice (applicable for EU-countries and Norway and Switzerland only)

I enclose payment by American Express Visa MasterCard

Card #: _____ Exp. date: _____ CVC (three digits) (Amex four digits) _ _ | _ | _ | _

Signature: _____ Phone: _____

I have sent the amount by SWIFT to the Nordic Africa Institute Bank account, Bank: Postgirot Bank, SE-105 06 Stockholm, Clearing No: 9960, Account No: 76 07 15-3, IBAN: SE78 9500 0099 6034 0760 7153, SWIFT/BIC: NDEASESS

SEND TO

The Nordic Africa Institute • P.O. Box 1703 • SE-75147 Uppsala • Fax: +4618562290 • Phone: +4618562200
Email-orders: orders@nai.uu.se • Order on-line: www.nai.uu.se

Contents overleaf

Contents

Chapter 1. History in the new South Africa: An introduction Hans Erik Stolten	5
– Part 1 – The role of history in the creation of a new South Africa
Chapter 2. Thoughts on South Africa: Some preliminary ideas Saul Dubow	51
Chapter 3. New nation, new history? - Constructing the past in post-apartheid South Africa Colin Bundy.....	73
Chapter 4 . Truth rather than justice? - Historical narratives, gender and public education in South Africa Elaine Unterhalter	98
Chapter 5. Claiming land and making memory - Engaging with the past in land restitution Anna Bohlin	114
Chapter 6. Reflections on practising applied history in South Africa 1994-2002 – From skeletons to schools Martin Legassick.....	129
Chapter 7. From apartheid to democracy in South Africa - A reading of dominant discourses of democratic transition Thiven Reddy.....	148
— Part 2 — The handling of heritage and the popularising of memory
Chapter 8. The politics of public history in post-apartheid South Africa Gary Baines	167
Chapter 9. The transformation of heritage in the new South Africa Christopher Saunders	183
Chapter 10. Reframing remembrance: The politics of the centenary commemoration of the South African War of 1899-1902 Albert Grundlingh.....	196
Chapter 11. Structure of memory: Apartheid in the museum Georgi Verbeeck	217
Chapter 12. Building the “new South Africa” - Urban space, architectural design, and the disruption of historical memory Martin Murray	227
— Part 3 — Interpretations of South African history
Chapter 13. Whose memory – whose history? - The illusion of liberal and radical historical debates Bernhard Magubane	251
Chapter 14. Four decades of South African historical writing: A personal perspective Christopher Saunders.....	280
Chapter 15. Revisiting the debate about the role of business under Apartheid Merle Lipton	292
Chapter 16. Afrikaner anti-communist history production in South African historiography Wessel Visser	302
Chapter 17. “1922 and all that” - Facts and the writing of South African political history Allison Drew	334
Chapter 18. A useable past: The search for “history in chords” Catherine Burns	351
Contributors.....	363
Abbreviations.....	369
Index	371

List of Authors

Gary Baines is a Senior Lecturer in the History Department, Rhodes University, Grahamstown, South Africa. He holds a MA from Rhodes University and a Doctorate from the University of Cape Town. His areas of research include South African urban history and culture, especially film and music.

Anna Bohlin graduated from the School of Oriental and African Studies with a BA (Hon) in Social Anthropology and Politics. She completed her doctoral dissertation at Department of Anthropology, Gothenburg University, Sweden and is working on a Sida-financed anthropological project.

Colin Bundy is Professor, Director, and Principal at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. He studied at University of Natal and University of the Witwatersrand, got his MPhil in American History and a DPhil in South African Rural History from Oxford University. Colin Bundy held teaching and research positions at the University of Oxford before returning to South Africa as Professor in History at the University of Cape Town. He had a joint appointment as Professor of History at both UCT and the University of the Western Cape. He served as Vice-Rector at UWC before moving to the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg in 1997, where he served as Principal and Vice-Chancellor. He was Editor of the Journal of Southern African Studies.

Catherine Burns is a Senior Lecturer in History at the University of KwaZulu-Natal in Durban. She had her BA Honours in History at University of the Witwatersrand, a MA in History from Johns Hopkins University, and she wrote her PhD at Northwestern University. Her field of research includes women's health, indigenous health and healing systems, and the history of women and past and present gender identities in Southern Africa.

Allison Drew teaches Politics at the University of York. Her research has focussed on South African politics and history, especially the relationship between socialist organizations and the national liberation movement. She has published Discordant Comrades: Identities and Loyalties on the South African Left, 2000, 2002, South Africa's Radical Tradition: A Documentary History, 2 vols., 1996-97, and numerous articles.

Saul Dubow was educated at the universities of Cape Town and Oxford and received his PhD from St. Antony's College. He has been at Sussex University since 1989 where he has been working as Professor and Chair of History at the School of African and Asian Studies. His teaching and research concentrates on the history of modern South Africa from the mid-nineteenth century to the present. He is on the editorial board of the Journal of Southern African Studies and is director of the Southern African Research Centre.

Albert Grundlingh is Professor and Head of the History Department at the University of Stellenbosch. Before taking up the position as Head of the History Department at Stellenbosch in 2001, he headed the History Department at the University of South Africa (Unisa). Prof. Grundlingh has published monographs on collaborators in Boer society during the South African War of 1899-1902 and South African black people and the First World War.

Martin Legassick is Professor in the History Department at University of the Western Cape. He holds a MA from Oxford University and a PhD from University of California, LA. He worked from 1974 at University of Warwick. Legassick has written on many aspects of South African history and society, from pre-colonial to the present day. He is involved in the Presidential SADET project, researching the history of the struggle for democracy in South Africa between 1960 and 1994.

Merle Lipton is a Senior Research Fellow at the School of African and Asian Studies, Sussex University. She has also worked at John Hopkins University, Yale University, at Chatham House, and Centre for International Studies at London School of Economics. Merle Lipton's current research focusing on the role of business and of economic sanctions, is funded by the UK's Economic and Social Research Council. Her publications include Capitalism and Apartheid: South Africa 1910-86, Gower, 1986.

Bernhard Makhosezwe Magubane is Professor of Sociology and Director for the South African Democracy Education Trust. He holds a BA and a MA from University of Natal, Durban, a MA in Sociology, and PhD in Anthropology from University of California. Magubane returned to South Africa after working many years at the University of Connecticut. He has held teaching positions at the University of Zambia, UCLA and at SUNI in Birmingham. He has also worked at the Monthly Review Press. After returning to South Africa, Professor Magubane joined the Human Sciences Research Council as a Chief Research Specialist. He has published extensively, including The Political Economy of Race and Class in South Africa, Monthly Review Press, New York, 1979/1990 and The Making of a Racist State: British Imperialism and the Union of South Africa, 1875-1910, Africa World Press, 1996.

Martin J. Murray works as Professor at the Department of Sociology, State University of New York at Binghamton. He holds a BA in Philosophy from University of San Francisco, an MA in Philosophy, and a PhD in Sociology from University of Texas at Austin. Prof. Murray has worked at Department of Sociology, University of the Witwatersrand, at University of Cape Town, and at Department of Sociology, University of Missouri, Kansas City. His works include The Revolution Deferred: The Painful Birth of Post-Apartheid South Africa, London, 1994.

Thiven Reddy is a Senior Lecturer in Department of Political Studies at the University of Cape Town. He completed his Bachelor of Social Science Honours degree at the University of Natal in Durban and his Masters and PhD in Political Science at the University of Washington in Seattle. His areas of specialisation are Comparative Politics including Contemporary South African Politics. Another main research area is Political Theory including Marxism and Postcolonial theory. His book Hegemony and Resistance: Contesting Identities in South Africa, London, 2000, draws on the writings of Gramsci and Foucault to theorise the construction of identity in South Africa. He was awarded a Commonwealth Fellowship to Bristol University in 2001 and the Harvard/Mandela Fellowship in 2003.

Christopher Saunders is Professor in History at the University of Cape Town. His doctorate from Oxford University dealt with the history of the Transkei. Since then, he has been one of the most productive South African historians. He has written widely on various aspects of Cape and South African history. Prof. Saunders' main research interests are in the areas of Cape history, South African historiography, recent Namibian history, education policy and nation building. He is the author of numerous books. Among his best known publications are The Making of the South African Past: Major Historians on Race and Class, 1988 and South Africa. A Modern History, Fifth Edition, 2000 (together with Rodney Davenport).

Hans Erik Stolten is a historian from the University of Copenhagen, where he has worked as lecturer and researcher at the Centre of African Studies. He has also worked with the Great Danish Encyclopaedia as author/reader on Southern African topics. He has a history in the Danish Anti-Apartheid movement and in international solidarity work. He has written articles, reviews and reports on South African matters for several periodicals and he was editor of two books on the anti-apartheid movement. His MA examined the history of the South African trade union movement and his PhD dealt with the writing of history in South Africa. He worked as Research Fellow for Denmark at the Nordic Africa Institute in Uppsala, Sweden from 1999 until 2002.

Elaine Unterhalter is Senior Lecturer in Education and International Development at the Institute of Education, University of London. Her early academic training was as a historian and she studied at the University of the Witwatersrand and at Cambridge University. She completed her PhD at the School of Oriental and African Studies in London. Her later work has focused on the sociology of gender and education. Her current funded research project is on The National Qualifications Framework in South Africa and its impact on Women and she is making collaborative research together with the Education Policy Unit at the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg.

Georgi Verbeeck is currently Associate Professor of History at the universities of Maastricht in the Netherlands and Leuven in Belgium. His recent publications concentrate on historiography and politics of memory in Germany and South Africa. His publications include "Een nieuw verleden voor een nieuw natie. Een Duits model voor Zuid-Afrika?" and "A New Past for a New Nation? Historiography and Politics in South Africa. A Comparative Approach", in Historia, 45, 2, 2000.

Wessel Visser is a Lecturer in South African history at the University of Stellenbosch since 1988. He completed his PhD in 2001 and was promoted to senior lecturer ad hominem in 2003. His research specialization is the history of the South African labour movement, trade unions, labour, socialist and communist press. His current research project deals with the history of the South African Mine Workers' Union. His PhD dealt with the role of the press during trade union organising.

Reviews and evaluations of this book:

- Robert Shanafelt, The African studies Quarterly, Volume 10, Issue 1, Spring 2008, <http://www.africa.ufl.edu/asq/v10/v10i1a11.htm>
- Steffen Jensen, Review of African Political Economy, Vol. 35 No. 116, (June 2008), pp. 350-352, Web: <http://www.roape.org/cgi-bin/roape/show/11621.html>
- John Wright, South African Historical Journal, (08/02/2008), http://www.sabinet.co.za/rssfeed/article/sahist_feed.xml
- Teresa Barnes, Journal of African History, 48,03, pp. 508-09, Web full-text: http://journals.cambridge.org/download.php?file=%2FAFH%2FAFH48_03%2FS0021853707003209a.pdf&code=0553468fcf3089675695a37a3d8fa71f
- Tower Books top 100 (listed as number 28): http://www.tower.com/surf/top_100/top100_1.cfm?&cat101=47&facet=PIW_cfg_id,PIW_Cat102_id,label_facet&cat102=3539
- South African Yearbook 2007/08 | HISTORY, Suggested Reading: <http://www.gcis.gov.za/docs/publications/yearbook/2008/chapter2.pdf>
- Raymond Suttner, African Historical Review, forthcoming.
- Peter Alegi, H-SAfrica, forthcoming.